Welcome to SCMMA

The Saskatoon Civic Middle Management Association (SCMMA), IFPTE Local 222, was founded on March 30, 1996. We are a certified trade union recognized by the Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board, with over 440 members.

All city employees who work in positions covered by the SCMMA Collective Agreement are represented by the SCMMA and pay dues to the SCMMA.

Working together, we, City of Saskatoon employees, continue to:

- ✓ Partner with management and political officials to ensure the City of Saskatoon continues to provide excellent service to our community
- ✓ Negotiate and improve policies, thereby simplifying processes and ensuring equitable, efficient resolution of issues
- ✓ Ensure full access to valuable training and professional development
- ✓ Communicate to elected official the employee perspective on policies that impacts our work and profession
- ✓ Provide a confidential feedback loop to management
- ✓ Ensure that standards of professional integrity are upheld and not compromised

“We are a certified trade union recognized by the Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board”

What is a union?

A union is a group of employees coming together using a democratic process to engage in collective bargaining in order to negotiate with their employer. This includes the ability to negotiate over working conditions and policies that impact their work, career, and training.

A union is about taking personal responsibility over our career and work life. Instead of relying on our employer and elected officials to do the right thing, by activating and maintaining our right to engage in collective bargaining, you can have a voice that allows you to:

- ✓ respectfully question decisions
- ✓ advocate for our work and funding
- ✓ collaborate to resolve challenges
- ✓ have a means to hold our employer accountable

What Does a Union Do?

Unions are organizations that represent groups of workers in various industries and professions. They are established to advocate for the rights, interests, and well-being of their members. Here are some of the key functions and activities that unions typically engage in:

1. Collective Bargaining: One of the primary roles of unions is to negotiate with employers on behalf of their members to establish employment terms, such as wages, benefits, working conditions, and other labour-related matters. This negotiation process is known as collective bargaining.
2. Wage and Benefits Negotiation: Unions work to secure fair wages, benefits (such as healthcare, retirement plans, and paid leave), and other compensation-related elements for their members. They aim to ensure that workers receive adequate remuneration for their efforts.
3. Worker Rights and Protections: Unions advocate for the rights of workers, including safe working conditions, protection against discrimination and harassment, and fair treatment in the workplace. They may take action to address issues related to workplace safety, fair treatment, and compliance with labour laws.
4. Grievance Resolution: Unions assist workers in resolving conflicts and disputes with employers through formal grievance procedures. If a member faces an issue or violation of their rights, the union can step in to address the problem and work toward a solution.
5. Advocacy for Labour Legislation: Unions often lobby for labour-friendly policies and laws at local, provincial, and national levels of government. They aim to influence legislation that supports workers' interests, such as minimum wage laws, worker protections, and employment standards.
6. Political Engagement: Some unions engage in political activities, including endorsing and supporting candidates for political office who align with their goals and priorities. This involvement in the political process can help further the interests of workers and promote labour-friendly policies.
7. Training and Skill Development: Many unions provide training and education programs to enhance the skills and knowledge of their members. This can include workshops, seminars, and apprenticeship programs that help workers improve their abilities and advance in their careers.

8. Community and Social Initiatives: Unions may participate in community service projects, charitable activities, and social initiatives to give back to the community and promote a sense of solidarity among their members.
9. Strikes and Work Stoppages: In extreme cases, when negotiations break down and workers' rights are threatened, unions may organize strikes or work stoppages as a way to leverage their collective power and pressure employers to address their concerns.
10. Membership Support: Unions provide members with assistance in various aspects of their work lives, including legal representation, career development, and support during times of workplace conflict.

It's important to note that the specific activities and priorities of unions can vary widely depending on factors such as the industry, region, and the legal environment in which they operate. Unions play a significant role in shaping labour relations and influencing workplace policies to ensure the well-being and rights of workers are upheld.

About SCMMA

History

At a meeting held in March 1996, a group of members from the Exempt Staff Association (ESA) initiated steps to establish a new organization that is now known as SCMMA. The objective of our organization is best summarized in Article III of our founding constitution, which states:

"The Association is formed with the objective of uniting all workers so employed in order to advance and safeguard their economic and social welfare and to represent their interest in transactions between such employees and their employer, the City of Saskatoon."

AGM and Meetings

Our Annual General Meeting is held in October of each year. Typical business at the AGM is electing new board members and reviewing the financials and budget for approval.

Three quarterly members' meetings are normally held in January, April, and July. Quarterly meetings are used to update any ongoing projects and hear questions and feedback from the members.

These meetings are an opportunity to find out what SCMMA is doing on behalf of members and express any concerns or issues you have directly to the board.

Elections

Elections are part of the Annual General Meeting and voting is done via an online system. Nominees require a nominator and a seconder. If you are interested in volunteering with the Board and want more information, please contact any board member. No prior experience is required and training is provided.

All Officers shall commence their official duties as of the 1st day of November each calendar year and shall be elected for a term of three years:

- a) President: Year 3 of the election cycle
- b) Vice-President: Year 1 of the election cycle
- d) Secretary: Year 1 of the election cycle

IFPTE Affiliation

The International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers (IFPTE) is a non-profit employee-based organization, made up of autonomous local affiliates, such as SCMMA, Winnipeg Association of Public Service Officers, TEAM Union, The Society of United Professionals, and many more.

IFPTE advocates on behalf of more than 90,000 people in professional and technical occupations both in Canada and in the United States.

“IFPTE advocates on behalf of more than 90,000 people in professional and technical occupations both in Canada and in the United States.”

Unique within labour, most of IFPTE members' occupations are primarily white-collar, including all engineering disciplines, a wide variety of scientific and research professions, lawyers and administrative judges, economists, environmental officers, and urban planners, among others, all within the private, public, and federal sectors.

SCMMA joined IFPTE in 2019 and has since benefited greatly from the affiliation. We have access to labour relations expertise, as well as training, communications, and assistance with negotiations when needed. Through our affiliation, SCMMA is now part of a network of other unionized professionals (including civic professionals) within IFPTE and the broader labour movement. SCMMA's affiliation to the IFPTE has strengthened our organization as well as enhancing our capacity to service our members.

Your Contract Explained

You have the right to request that a SCMMA representative join you in any meeting that you believe will be investigatory and/or disciplinary.

Collective Agreement Highlights

What happens during collective agreement renewal?

Prior to the expiration of our collective agreement, bargaining priorities are determined through membership meetings, bargaining surveys, and recommendations from the SCMMA Board.

Our Bargaining Team is composed of SCMMA's President, Director of Labour Relations, Secretary, and other Board members and union advisors necessary to support bargaining.

Either party (SCMMA or the city) can serve written notice to bargain between 120 - 60 days prior to the expiration of the collective agreement. During negotiations with the city, each side exchanges their bargaining agenda. Negotiations continue until a tentative agreement is reached.

When the Bargaining Team reaches a tentative agreement with the employer, membership meetings are called to provide a full report to members on the details of the Memorandum of Agreement and the ratification process.

After the membership meetings have concluded, a ratification vote is conducted among the entire represented membership.

It is important that SCMMA members are informed and engaged throughout the bargaining process. Your support and participation is vital to a successful outcome.
